MICHIGAN INDIA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GROWS

Posted on 12/17/2007 1:24:38 PM

The Michigan India Chamber of Commerce held its third meeting last week at Marx Layne & Co., the Farmington Hills corporate communications firm.

Networking was the focus of this monthly meeting, but there was also a presentation from Kathy Munoz, a "master" of reiki, a Japanese-based healing art.

The meeting was open to both members and non-members and 23 people with varied backgrounds came to network and to learn more about this new business group focused on the Asian Indian community.

The chamber will hold all meetings on the second Wednesday of each month. The meetings are at no cost for members, youths, and non-profits and $10 for non-members.

The next meeting is set for Jan. 9, at which a fitness expert will speak about one on one and group strength training. Meetings will be held at Marx Layne, one of the organization's members.

For more information on events or the Michigan India Chamber of Commerce, visit <http://www.miicc.com>, e-mail Nipa Shah at info@miicc.com or call (248) 470-6299.

The MIICC was founded by Nipa Shah, president of the Jenesys Group LLC, a full-service online marketing and Web site design, development, and maintenance company. More at www.jenesysgroup.com.
